(By United Press)

New York, Oct. 15.—(U.P.)—The largest and busiest city in the world dropped whatever it happened to be doing today to inspect the largest dirigible in the world.

From the time the Graf Zeppelin crawled up the horizon at 3:50 P. M. and headed over across the city, business halted. Necks were craned out of skyscraper windows, crowds halted on the sidewalks and sirens blasted a salute to the enormous gas bag and its load of human beings from the old world.

At 3:58 P. M. the dirigible passed directly over the United Press office here, flying so low that it almost scraped the tops of the skyscrapers in lower Manhattan.

The great rip in the left fin was clearly visible and through the tear in the covering could be seen the skeleton struts.

The tear in the fin was estimated to be 200 square feet.

After leaving the Battery, at the lower end of Broadway, the dirigible traveling at reduced speed, headed up the East river and crossed over the mid-town section, after giving the crowds on lower Broadway a chance to see its giant hulk.

Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 15.—The Graf Zeppelin, Germany's proud commercial airship, sailed above America this afternoon, bound for New York and later for the naval air station hangar here.

Passing in over Cape Charles this forenoon, she swept a triumphant way through Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Camden, Trenton and New Brunswick, bound for New York.

Word received here in mid-afternoon said she would be over New York at 4 P. M., and she was expected back here at 5:30 for docking.

The Zeppelin passed Lakehurst in the distance on her way north shortly before 3:30, and continued her way. She resembled a cloud moving rapidly.

The Graf Zeppelin, first air liner between Europe and America, flew triumphantly over the larger cities of the eastern seaboard today after a voyage of 5,400 miles from Friedrichshafen, Germany.

Washington, Baltimore, Wilmington, Philadelphia and smaller cities turned out to admire the 770-foot dirigible as it neared New York and Lakehurst, N. J., the end of the journey.

Washington, Oct. 15.—An unsigned and incomplete message presumably from the Graf Zeppelin intercepted here today indicated that the craft would attempt to fly over New York City before arriving at Lakehurst.

The message said fuel remained for about sixty-five hours and that the craft had traveled about six thousand miles.

Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 15.—The Graf Zeppelin wireless naval officials here that she would arrive over New York at four P. M. today.

The flight to New York would put her back ready for landing between 5 and 5:30 P. M. at the landing field here. General orders issued to the ground crew indicated the belief that the ship would be ready for docking around 5 P. M.

HIS SPEECH IN BOSTON EMPHASIZES "PROSPERITY" ISSUE

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE SEEKS TO INCREASE STRENGTH IN COMMONWEALTH

By THOMAS L. STOKES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Aboard Herbert Hoover's Special Train En Route to Boston, Oct. 15.—Herbert Hoover was enroute today on an important political mission to Massachusetts, where President Coolidge began his political career.

Appearing before thousands of voters and through his speech in Boston tonight emphasizing "prosperity," the republican candidate will seek to increase his strength in this state which gave Coolidge an overwhelming majority in 1924, but in which Governor Alfred E. Smith this year admittedly has a large body of followers.

Hoover arose early today in his private car for one of the busiest days of his campaign.

Massachusetts will greet the republican candidate officially at Newtonville, through Governor Fuller. Hoover and his party will leave the train at Newtonville for an automobile ride through Boston's suburbs and the city will welcome him upon historic Boston Common.

Hoover's speech is scheduled to begin at 8 o'clock eastern standard time, over a national radio hook-up.

Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 15.—(U.P.)—The Graf Zeppelin was expected to anchor here some time today after her more than 100 hours of flying from Germany.

Making her way towards Lakehurst, after Sunday's wandering in the vicinity of Bermuda against headwinds and with her fins undergoing repairs, the world's largest commissioned airship was awaited eagerly at the naval air station.

At 6:20 A. M. the big craft was 250 miles east by north of Cape Hatteras apparently headed directly for Lakehurst.

The weekend had witnessed the brewing of a serious controversy over the dirigible's early refusal, despite repeated requests to answer Commandant Edward S. Jackson's urgent appeals for her position.

The Zeppelin did at last however, advise the Navy department of her position, and Commander Rosendahl, U. S. Navy who is aboard, furnished further position data—necessary so the station could arrange its landing arrangements.

Late last night Assistant Secretary of Navy Warner poured oil on the troubled waters after German officials had let the Navy know they felt the department was at least partly responsible for a misunderstanding which, for a time, threatened to mar the good-will aspects of the venture.

GOV. SMITH IS MOVING ON TO MISSOURI

HAD 4 DAYS' HEAVY CAMPAIGNING IN DOUBTFUL BORDER STATES

NOW TO GIVE PERSONAL ATTENTION TO THE "SHOW ME" STATE

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Aboard Smith Special Train enroute to St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 15.—After four days of heavy campaigning in the doubtful border states Gov. Alfred E. Smith moved on toward Missouri today to give his personal attention to the fight there.

The governor, confident that he would swing Missouri as well as the other border states, told members of his party he was satisfied that he had won Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee and Kentucky.

His day's schedule takes him to Sedalia, where he will speak tomorrow night.

Accompanied by a group of reporters and members of his family, Governor Smith paid a visit to the birthplace of Abraham Lincoln at Hodgenville, Ky., yesterday.

In the nation's shrine the democratic chieftain paid his homage to the great emancipator, donning his famous brown derby he remarked to Mrs. Smith: "There is no royal road to greatness. Look at that" pointing to the small log cabin.

After carefully reading the wall panels detailing the family history of Lincoln's parents, Governor Smith purchased a number of souvenirs that are being sold to raise funds for the upkeep of the monument.

BANK MESSENGER IS HELD UP AND ROBBED IN ST. PAUL

St. Paul, Oct. 15.—(U.P.)—Dorothy Sutcliffe, messenger of the Grand Avenue State Bank, was held up on a street car here today and robbed of $2,230.

Miss Sutcliffe was on her way to the Merchants National Bank when a man, sitting beside her, grabbed at the grip containing the money and said, "Fork that over."

The bandit rang the bell and as the car stopped jumped into an automobile which obviously followed the street car.

The robbery today was the second for the bank this year and third in five years. Last January the institution was robbed of $20,000 and in 1923 of $5,000.

UNFROCKED BISHOP SPEAKS IN A MOST PESSIMISTIC MOOD

Washington, Oct. 15.—(U.P.)—Modern science has "utterly demolished every vestige of truth in the Bible, the creed and the confession of faith," Bishop William Montgomery Brown, unfrocked Episcopal prelate, declared in an address here yesterday before the Washington Open Forum.

"We are on the eve of a new priesthood—men of science are going to be our leaders," he said. Religion and politics are complementary halves of the same social reality, Bishop Brown said without alluding directly to the presidential campaign.

The churchman who was unfrocked following a trial in Cleveland, O., in 1924 on charges of heresy, attacked Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church in New York City, in his comments on orthodox religion.

"The trouble with Dr. Straton is not narrow mindedness but absent mindedness. His mind has been absent from the job for many years," Bishop Brown said.

FINAL EFFORT TO SAVE LIFE OF HICKMAN

UNDER SENTENCE TO BE HANGED FRIDAY FOR MURDER OF SCHOOL GIRL

ATTORNEY TO APPEAL TO CALIFORNIA GOVERNOR FOR CLEMENCY

San Quentin Penitentiary, Calif., Oct. 15.—(U.P.)—A final effort to save the life of William Edward Hickman, under sentence to be hanged Friday for the murder of Marion Parker, Los Angeles school girl, will be made tomorrow.

Jerome Walsh, youthful Kansas City, Mo., attorney, will appeal to Gov. C. C. Young for clemency for the youth. Chances of Walsh winning in this final attempt are considered exceptionally remote.

Hickman, who is convinced he has only three more days to live, spent Sunday in his "death row" cell reading his Bible and writing many letters asking forgiveness for his sins.

These letters he considered his preparation for death. In almost everyone he begged "glory and honor to our Lord," and explained that he was "grievously sorry" for his sins.

Hickman has continued to insist that the only reason he kidnapped Marion Parker was to get money from her father so that he could go to college and study for the ministry.

CHRISTIANSON IS ASSURED OF RE-ELECTION

CHANCES OF ARTHUR E. NELSON ARE EXTREMELY GOOD

MINNESOTA HAS NEVER GONE DEMOCRATIC IN HER HISTORY

St. Paul, Oct. 15.—(U.P.)—Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg, back in Minnesota for a week's rest from his official duties, predicted today that Minnesota would vote the republican ticket.

"Herbert Hoover is gaining ground here," Kellogg said. "Governor Christianson's election is virtually assured and the chances of Arthur E. Nelson are extremely good."

"There have been persistent rumors that Minnesota is a doubtful state. I cannot believe this. Minnesota has never gone democratic and I doubt very much if it will in this election."

Secretary Kellogg said that the outlook in the east was favorable to the republicans.

"I am glad to be back in Minnesota," Kellogg said. "It is more than a year since I was here. I guess I have never been weaned from this state."

While here Secretary Kellogg will make a political address Wednesday at a luncheon of the Ramsey County Republican Women's Club at the Saint Paul hotel. He is expected to discuss the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway and urge the election of Hoover. It was announced the address would be broadcast over KSTP at 1:15 P. M.

On Thursday, Kellogg will go to Northfield where he will assist in the dedication of Severance Memorial Hall, and where he will be awarded the degree doctor of laws.

Kellogg is in charge of negotiations with Canada for an agreement on the canal.

The secretary refused to discuss politics or international affairs on his arrival here. He will leave for Washington Friday while Mrs. Kellogg will remain here to visit friends.

Secretary Kellogg will officiate at the dedication of Severance Memorial hall at Carleton college, Northfield, Thursday. He will receive from the college the degree of doctor of laws.

BLAINE IN SUPPORT OF GOV. SMITH

WISCONSIN U. S. SENATOR IS A MEMBER OF LA FOLLETTE PROGRESSIVE WING

ASSERTS THE DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE HAS SPOKEN PLAINLY ON ISSUES

Boscobel, Wis., Oct. 15.—(U.P.)—Unqualified support of Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, democratic candidate for president, was announced here today by U. S. Senator John J. Blaine, a member of the La Follette progressive wing of the republican party in Wisconsin.

Senator Blaine, who was a delegate-at-large to the republican national convention in Kansas City where his colleague, Senator Robert M. La Follette, Jr., presented a minority platform, had intimated during his campaign for election as a delegate that he might support the New York governor if the republican choice was not to his liking.

Blaine asserted the democratic nominee has spoken plainly, fearlessly and courageously during his western trip, has challenged corruption in high places, has defied privileges in any form and has thrown to the winds every consideration of political expediency.

Blaine's statement follows: "Mr. Hoover is opposed to practically all of the policies of the great mass of progressive republicans and independent forward-thinking people of America. I will not support him. He would make an ideal and able, benevolent monarch anywhere. I have no doubt, because the sponsors of his campaign depend upon bigotry, intolerance and puritanical hypocrisy to win."

"As shown from the records of Smith's administration as governor of New York, he possesses a genius and leadership that gets things done. He possesses a Lincoln genius and a Jefferson leadership. For these reasons alone I could heartily support him. For the following reason I shall actively support him:

"He recognizes the true cause of farm depression, namely exportable surpluses. He proposes to control those surpluses and make adequate tariff effective on farm product. That is a permanent and sane public policy that will stabilize farm work and prevent gouging of the public packers, the millers and the cold storage interests."

"He is opposed to imperialism in every form whether in the republics to the south of us or elsewhere. He is opposed to all foreign entanglements and alliances."

"He has fought consistently to conserve the last natural resource possessed by the people, namely water power. He stands for government ownership of the great power sites and water power resources and for government operation and control."

"Governor Smith possesses a courage that will ruthlessly drive corruption out of public affairs. He stands four-square for an election machinery that will give the people the right to control their government through direct primaries."

"He offers a constructive and constitutional program for a modification of the Volstead act that will promote moderation and temperance. He is on the square with the work-

NELSON HOPES TO FORCE SHIPSTEAD TO DECLARE STAND ON PROHIBITION

ALSO FOR SHIPSTEAD TO NAME HIS CHOICE OF PRESIDENT

St. Paul, Oct. 15.—(U.P.)—A further effort to force Senator Henrik Shipstead, farmer-labor candidate, to name the party under the principles of which he seeks re-election was seen in a challenge for public debate issued to Shipstead by Arthur E. Nelson, republican senatorial nominee.

Nelson proposed that debates be held in each of Minnesota's 10 congressional districts and be limited to legitimate issues. Through the debates Nelson indicated he hoped to force Shipstead to declare his stand on the prohibition issue and to name his choice of the presidency.

Nelson insisted in his challenge to Shipstead that by only such methods can the "many doubts beclouding the Minnesota senatorial campaign be cleared up."

MYSTERIOUS MESSAGE INDICATES KIDNAPING

Little Falls, Oct. 15.—(U.P.)—A mysterious message found in the Northern Pacific passenger station here today made police fear that Lawrence Fasching, Minneapolis inventor, had been kidnapped.

The brief message in an envelope addressed to Esther Rolf, 4738 Aldrich Ave., South, Minneapolis, stated:

"I didn't know anything until an hour ago. Some guys kidnaped me last night. They want my patent, so for God's sake help me. I had to write this on the sly. My clothes are at the Hastings hotel."

Little Falls police called the woman to whom the message was addressed and she informed them that she had not seen Fasching since Saturday night. She said she had expected a message from Fasching, but was unable to shed any light on possible kidnapers.

Miss Rolf said she did not know to what patent Fasching referred.

ALBERT LEA MAN WOUNDED BY POLICE

St. Paul, Oct. 15.—(U.P.)—Billy Mork, 23, Albert Lea, Minn., was wounded by police today in a chase after he had escaped from a raided gambling house.

Mork's wound was not considered serious. He was held with Ted Johnson, also Albert Lea, and George LeRoy and Carl Uhler, both of St. Paul. The three are suspected of having taken part in recent slot machine hijacking expeditions.

Two slot machines and a quantity of nickles were confiscated by police at the gambling establishment.

FEDERAL AGENT DENIED REVIEW

Johannesburg, South Africa, Oct. 15.—(U.P.)—Dr. Cadle, returning to America with an American exploring expedition, declared that he had confirmed his hypothesis that the Kalahari desert region is the real cradle of humanity. He reported discovering Bushmen in this area who were living in stone age conditions.

La Follette, Jr., presented a minority platform, had intimated during his campaign for election as a delegate that he might support the New York governor if the republican choice was not to his liking.

Blaine asserted the democratic nominee has spoken plainly, fearlessly and courageously during his western trip, has challenged corruption in high places, has defied privileges in any form and has thrown to the winds every consideration of political expediency.

Blaine's statement follows: "Mr. Hoover is opposed to practically all of the policies of the great mass of progressive republicans and independent forward-thinking people of America. I will not support him. He would make an ideal and able, benevolent monarch anywhere, I have no doubt, because the sponsors of his campaign depend upon bigotry, intolerance and puritanical hypocrisy to win."

"As shown from the records of Smith's administration as governor of New York, he possesses a genius and leadership that gets things done. He possesses a Lincoln genius and a Jefferson leadership. For these reasons alone I could heartily support him. For the following reason I shall actively support him:

"He recognizes the true cause of farm depression, namely exportable surpluses. He proposes to control those surpluses and make adequate tariff effective on farm product. That is a permanent and sane public policy that will stabilize farm work and prevent gouging of the public packers, the millers and the cold storage interests."

"He is opposed to imperialism in every form whether in the republics to the south of us or elsewhere. He is opposed to all foreign entanglements and alliances."

"He has fought consistently to conserve the last natural resource possessed by the people, namely water power. He stands for government ownership of the great power sites and water power resources and for government operation and control."

"Governor Smith possesses a courage that will ruthlessly drive corruption out of public affairs. He stands four-square for an election machinery that will give the people the right to control their government through direct primaries."

"He offers a constructive and constitutional program for a modification of the Volstead act that will promote moderation and temperance. He is on the square with the work-

NELSON HOPES TO FORCE SHIP-
STEAD TO DECLARE STAND ON PROHIBITION

ALSO FOR SHIPSTEAD TO NAME
HIS CHOICE OF PRESI-DENCY

St. Paul, Oct. 15.—(UP)—A further effort to force Senator Henrik Shipstead, farmer-labor candidate, to name the party under the principles of which he seeks re-election was seen in a challenge for public debate issued to Shipstead by Arthur E. Nelson, republican senatorial nominee.

Nelson proposed that debates be held in each of Minnesota's 10 congressional districts and be limited to legitimate issues. Through the debates Nelson indicated he hoped to force Shipstead to declare his stand on the prohibition issue and to name his choice of the presidency.

Nelson insisted in his challenge to Shipstead that by only such methods can the "many doubts beclouding the Minnesota senatorial campaign be cleared up."

MYSTERIOUS MESSAGE INDICATES KIDNAPING

Little Falls, Oct. 15.—(UP)—A mysterious message found in the Northern Pacific passenger station here today made police fear that Lawrence Fasching, Minneapolis inventor, had been kidnapped.

The brief message in an envelope addressed to Esther Rolf, 4736 Aldrich Ave., South, Minneapolis, stated: "I didn't know anything until an hour ago. Some guys kidnaped me last night. They want my patent, so for God's sake help me. I had to write this on the sly. My clothes are at the Hastings hotel."

Little Falls police called the woman to whom the message was addressed and she informed them that she had not seen Fasching since Saturday night. She said she had expected a message from Fasching, but was unable to shed any light on possible kidnapers.

Miss Rolf said she did not know to what patent Fasching referred.

Two slot machines and a quantity of nickles were confiscated by police at the gambling establishment.

IRONTON COP SHOOTSMAN WHO ATTACKS HIM

Dan Polovich in Critical Condition From Gun Wounds in Miner's Hospital Today

RAN AMUCK WITH KNIFE

Ed Lehrke Protects Himself From Rushes of Man With Knife by Shooting Adversary

Dan Polovich of Ironton is in the Miner's hospital today in a critical condition after he was shot twice by Ed Lehrke, police officer whom he attacked with a butcher knife about 3:30 a. m. Sunday.

Lehrke in a statement to the Dispatch today said that he was forced to protect himself from the mad rushes of Polovich by drawing his gun. He said that the man attacked him twice with a butcher knife and that as he was about to strike him he shot him in the leg and in the chest.

Previous to his attack on the police officer, Polovich is said to have attacked Gust Franson on the streets of Ironton.

The injured man is said to be suffering from mental derangement.

Officer Lehrke stated that the man was dressed in out door clothes at the time with a mackinaw coat on.

The attack, Officer Lehrke said, came when the man had exclaimed, "I own the bank, I own the Spina hotel."

Enjoy a Maytag no-rub washing

For homes without electricity, the Maytag is available with in-built gasoline motor.

THE Maytag is so much faster, so much easier to handle, so quiet and smooth-running, so thorough, so remarkable in every way that the most forceful way of convincing the housewife is to let her do a washing with it.

The Maytag Company originated the seamless, heat-retaining, non-breakable, cast-aluminum tub, the gyroform washing action, and many other outstanding washer improvements.

The Maytag deserves an opportunity to demonstrate how it will save you time by doing an entire washing in an hour or so, save your health by making hand-rubbing of badly soiled clothes unnecessary, save clothes by its easy way of cleansing by soap and water action alone, and by its Roller Water Remover, with a soft top roll and hard bottom roll.

MINNESOTA IN THE SENATE

THE excitement of the presidential campaign should not cause the people of Minnesota to forget that they ought to do some cool, calm thinking for the best interests about the campaign for the election of a United States senator, says the Duluth Herald.

The candidates are Dr. Henrik Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, and Arthur E. Nelson, former mayor of St. Paul, Republican.

The choice ought not to be at all difficult if it rests upon sound consideration for the best interests of the state and its people.

If Mr. Nelson is elected, he will be a member of the party that probably will control the senate.

If Dr. Shipstead is elected, it will be as a member of a party that has only one member in the senate, and that is not likely ever to have another.

Now to anybody who knows how completely this country is wedded to party government, it will be perfectly clear that the interests of the state will be better served by a man who is working with a dominant party than by a man who is the sole representative of his party. Indeed, from that point of view there is no choice at all; a very ordinary man who represents one of the major parties could do far more for the state and its people than the ablest man in the state with no party backing whatever.

Arthur Nelson is quite as able a man as Dr. Shipstead. He is just as eager to serve the best interests of the people of Minnesota as Dr. Shipstead, he is personally just as able to do it, and as a member of the dominant party he would be far better able to do it.

Arthur E. Nelson is abundantly fitted, by character, by capacity, by inclination and by his loyalty to the people, to represent Minnesota in the United States senate. As a Republican, and as the only candidate for senator who is supporting Mr. Hoover, he will be far better fitted to work for the people of Minnesota in Washington than his opponent possibly could be.

Minnesota should make no mistake on the senatorship.

It should elect Mr. Nelson and be represented once more in the senate by an able man who is a member of a party that other states have heard of.

It should be remembered that despite all temptations to do as Minnesota did when it elected a Farmer-Labor representative to the senate, neither North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa nor Wisconsin has been foolish enough to do it. They are all represented there by men who, however independent they may be, are still Republicans. And Minnesota should follow their wise example.

FINDING A USE FOR JAZZ

THE Philadelphia Bulletin comments on finding a use for jazz, using it to pave the way to better music.

"Music is to the soul what air is to the body," said Plato. And nearly everyone remembers what Shakespeare said about him who has not music in his soul. Well, having two such immortals on the side of something coexistent with immortality, the door is wide open to a few thoughts on the subject suggested by Joseph Podolyn, who has charge of music in the Gillespie junior high.

Mr. Podolyn thinks everyone should be taught to appreciate music, and says, "How much better is the aim that creates a land of music lovers and good listeners in leisure hours than that which creates vocal or instrumental performers! Music in the heart of all gives birth to the appreciation of the soulful and the beautiful."

What a good cultivator of music appreciation is the radio! Recently, during a vacation, I spent three evenings tuning in, and the thing that most impressed me was the vast array of really excellent music that was available. Brahms, Chopin, Tchaikowsky, Schubert, Rossini, Gounod—these and a score of other outstanding composers were to be had at almost any moment. And the renditions of their works were of such quality as to bring out their beauty and their meaning to the soul.

Of course, there was plenty of jazz, and my feeling is that this lighter form of melody serves as a sort of appetizer for the loftier forms. The common experience of those who come into possession of music machines or radios is that jazz paves the way to more substantial and satisfying music. And there is a side to music, in its relation to human beings, which some of us do not often consider.

"Music is referred to as the 'tongue of emotions,'" adds Mr. Podolyn, "and what has made it an indispensable study in these days is its training of will power, its demand for applied concentration, power, and its uplifting and inspirational force in the various walks of life. So let us work for a singing people. Let us hope that, through such a creation, our children may find more concord in the relation of spirit to body and of body to mind. And let us always keep in mind the fact that 'where speech ends, there music begins.'"

CLEAN PLAY, COURTESY, CONDUCT

CLEAN play, courtesy, conduct.

The supervisory committee on athletics in the Philadelphia public high schools thinks so highly of having these attributes in every high school student competing in all fields of sport that it has set itself a practical basis to gain this end. The first step toward reaching this goal is the offering of the Lemuel Whitaker Sportsmanship trophy, in honor of the retired principal of the Southern high school. This cup is to be awarded next September to the school whose students display most of the three above-named qualities in athletic competition for the entire year.

SMITH AND THE WATERWAY

GOVERNOR SMITH said he would put the matter of the inland waterway up to a special commission of engineers and accept their recommendation, when he knew that such a thing has been done three times, and that each time he has refused to accept the decision because the St. Lawrence route was recommended and the All-American route across New York state rejected. Therefore he must be understood as willing to appoint a commission composed only of men who will be pledged beforehand to recommend the All-American route.—Deer River News.

HOW CAMPAIGN LOOKS TO A BUSINESS MAN

American Government Viewed as Business Organization Needs Hoover, Says Straus.

CANDIDATES ARE COMPARED

Head of Nation Must Be Man of Wide Knowledge and Experience Both at Home and Abroad.

By HERBERT N. STRAUS
Prominent New York Merchant.

To a business man, this campaign makes a particular appeal. It is my conviction that the American people must act at election time as if they constituted a great business organization. By this I do not mean that the nation should be without sentiment or without heart, but that the great necessity of today is for the continuance of a growing prosperity, not only for our own good, but that we may maintain our influence in world affairs. We can best visualize the situation if we think of the entire American people as constituting a group of stockholders about to select a new head for a vast enterprise of which we are all a part.

Let us call this organization "The American Company," with 111,000,000 stockholders. Let us suppose it manufactures and distributes many products and has branches in every state of the Union. It looks not only to the markets of this country, but to the markets of every country in the world for the distribution of its output. The products which we manufacture are made to sell at various prices to suit the needs of every pocketbook.

Now what are the specifications that we would require of a chief executive for an organization of this type? What should be his character and background, his education and experience, his personality? You will readily see that race, religion, social graces and sartorial perfection are of no importance, and you will also understand that in the specifications it will be equally unimportant as to how he stands on the 18th Amendment.

People Are Stockholders

We must further suppose that our organization has millions of employees on its payroll, that the next incumbent must be well-informed on the economic problems of every state in the Union and every country in the world, must have his hand on the pulse of relationship between employer and employee and the modern movements along this line,—in short he must be a student of economic and social problems, as well as thoroughly versed in the intricacies of production. It is essential that the president of this company understand the importance of continuous employment, and this can only be achieved by one who is a close student of economics, who can gauge his markets so as to have production keep step with demand.

Let us assume that we who are reading these words constitute a committee of stockholders of which I am chairman. This committee, I believe, would report to this effect:

"Your committee after a very careful survey finds that Mr. Alfred E. Smith is a man of very great ability, but that his experience is so much restricted to New York State that it would be unwise to promote him at this time. His success within the boundaries of his work has been distinct and remarkable. Perhaps at some future time a wider field of activity may be found for him, provided that he devote himself for the next five or six years to travel and study. He should familiarize himself not only with the intricate and delicate nature of our national business, but also learn more about the many problems that confront us throughout the country, which are so dissimilar from the problems that he has been accustomed to handling as head of our New York State branch.

"As to Mr. Herbert Hoover, your committee is pleased to say that it believes this organization is very fortunate in having as a possible head a man who has had his very extraordinary and varied experience. Mr. Hoover has not spent his entire life within the confines of one state, but is familiar with the geography of the whole country and the needs of every state in the Union. He knows all phases of our domestic and foreign business problems. This remarkable knowledge, so essential to the success of our organization, has been acquired by wide reading, study, travel and administrative experience. As a professional engineer of great skill, it was part of his elementary training to learn not only the boundary lines of the states, but the products, activities and the development of the economic life and well-being of all sections.

"In addition to this, he has spent some time abroad and there are few of the 53 countries in which we maintain branch offices and representatives which he has not studied. He has had a leading part in the management of our main offices in Washington for many years, during which he has had the full confidence of our directors and stockholders.

"We therefore recommend and urge the selection of Mr. Hoover as the new head of this organization."

Annals of War-Time Government Show Hoover Repeatedly Saved Agriculture From Disaster.

WASHINGTON. — Hoover's consistent friendship for the farmer is shown by his record, which is open. He not only did not fix maximum prices to the farmer, as has been willfully or ignorantly charged, but did his utmost to protect and secure fair and generous dealing to the wheat growers, hog producers and other farmers of the country for their war-time efforts. He followed through and made good on his undertakings to them in spite of the severest obstacles.

This summing up of Mr. Hoover's record is contained in a pamphlet just issued here. It lists as significant the following activities:

His personal efforts in 1919 and 1920 to develop measures of enlightened reconstruction to help the farmers maintain their economic position.

His creation in the Department of Commerce of a special division to promote the sale of agricultural products abroad.

His leading share in 1921 in reviving the War Finance Corporation, which was instrumental in halting decline in farm products.

His obtaining in December, 1921, of a Congressional appropriation for purchase of corn for Russian famine relief.

His leadership in the movement for a seaway to connect the Great Lakes and the Atlantic Ocean, and for completion of the Mississippi System to cheapen transportation of farm products.

His helping to solve problems of prompt and adequate rail transportation for farm products.

His program for elimination of waste, by means of which costs of manufactured commodities are being lowered.

Hundreds of minor services rendered by the Department of Commerce to the agricultural community.

The struggles to break the grip of foreign monopolies of commodities which American farmers must have.

Details of War Record

Hoover's war-time record is detailed, both as to his method of procedure as Food Administrator, his counsel in framing of policies which would encourage production, conserve food supplies and control the distribution of food products and fuel. As to the charge of price-fixing of wheat, it is pointed out that the Allied Governments had concentrated their purchasing and were preparing to fix a price of $1.50 to $1.80 per bushel. Congress had fixed the government price at $2.00 per bushel. The appointment by Wilson of a fair price committee, and the deliberations of this committee in arriving at a fair price of $2.20 at a meeting at which Mr. Hoover was not present are outlined, together with a statement by the four surviving farm members of the committee showing that the conclusions of the committee were not made known to Mr. Hoover until after the committee had reported to the President.

It is further shown, from documentary evidence, that President Wilson, in accepting the recommendations of the committee said: "The price now recommended, $2.20 per bushel, will be rigidly adhered to by the food administration. Mr. Hoover, at his express wish, has taken no part in the deliberations of the committee on whose recommendation I determined the government's fair price, nor has he in any way intimated an opinion regarding that price."

As Food Administrator

Mr. Hoover as Food Administrator protected the wheat growers' interests by preventing foreign governments from breaking the price, and again, by averting a collapse which threatened after the armistice.

While Mr. Hoover had no power to fix prices for hogs or pork products, the documents show that he succeeded in maintaining hog prices at more than twice the pre-war level until months after the armistice. This gave the producers millions of dollars more than they would otherwise have obtained.

This market, documents further show, was supported for months after the armistice, when not only allied governments but members of the Wilson Cabinet, including Secretary of the Treasury Glass and Secretary of Commerce Redfield, were advocating abandonment of all price control.

In this price-maintaining effort, Mr. Hoover had to break the post-armistice blockade by the Allies, to open the market of the Central Powers, and to induce France and Italy to restore orders which they had sought to repudiate, along with those of Great Britain.

PRAISES "CIRCUS SOLLY"

Editor, Brainerd Daily Dispatch,
Dear Sir:

I have read the stories carried from time to time in your paper describing the home talent play which the American Legion is putting on in the U. C. T. auditorium. I talked with a salesman that had witnessed the play over at Wadena and he said it was exceptionally good, so much so, that he is going to see it again here in Brainerd.

Now I wonder if there are many of us that are really as interested in things of this nature as we should be. It is a duty we really owe to our local American Legion post to help make this play a huge success, due to the fact that the boys have in the past, and are at present doing much for the communities in which they are located.

As I understand this show "Circus Solly" is just clean musical comedy with a laugh in every minute, and absolutely no chance for any one to raise objections as to why we should not all attend one of the performances either on Monday or Tuesday evening. The admission charge has been made low enough so that every one can really afford to attend this wonderful play.

As an individual I wish to express my appreciation to your paper for the space and good work you have rendered our local American Legion post in the way of helping us put this play across.

Respectfully yours,

JOHN J. BAKEHAM.

New York, Oct. 15.—When Herbert Hoover speaks tonight in Boston, a network of more than 30 radio stations will carry the republican presidential nominee's address throughout most of the United States. The talk will last for an hour, beginning at 8 p. m. eastern time. WEAF and an N. B. C. network will do the broadcasting.

Earlier in the evening, there will be three addresses of particular interest in New York state. Attorney General Albert Ottinger, republican candidate for governor, will make his acceptance speech over WEAF, WGY, Schenectady, and WGR, Buffalo, from 7 to 7:30 p. m. local time. H. Edmund Machold, republican state chairman, will be heard over WJZ at 6 p. m., and Senator Millard E. Tydings, democrat of Maryland, will talk over WEAF, WGY and WGR at the same hour.

MINNESOTA IN THE SENATE

THE excitement of the presidential campaign should not cause the people of Minnesota to forget that they ought to do some cool, calm thinking for the best interests about the campaign for the election of a United States senator, says the Duluth Herald.

The candidates are Dr. Henrik Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, and Arthur E. Nelson, former mayor of St. Paul, Republican.

The choice ought not to be at all difficult if it rests upon sound consideration for the best interests of the state and its people.

If Mr. Nelson is elected, he will be a member of the party that probably will control the senate.

If Dr. Shipstead is elected, it will be as a member of a party that has only one member in the senate, and that is not likely ever to have another.

Now to anybody who knows how completely this country is wedded to party government, it will be perfectly clear that the interests of the state will be better served by a man who is working with a dominant party than by a man who is the sole representative of his party. Indeed, from that point of view there is no choice at all; a very ordinary man who represents one of the major parties could do far more for the state and its people than the ablest man in the state with no party backing whatever.

Arthur Nelson is quite as able a man as Dr. Shipstead.

He is just as eager to serve the best interests of the people of Minnesota as Dr. Shipstead, he is personally just as able to do it, and as a member of the dominant party he would be far better able to do it.

Arthur E. Nelson is abundantly fitted, by character, by capacity, by inclination and by his loyalty to the people, to represent Minnesota in the United States senate. As a Republican, and as the only candidate for senator who is supporting Mr. Hoover, he will be far better fitted to work for the people of Minnesota in Washington than his opponent possibly could be.

Minnesota should make no mistake on the senatorship.

It should elect Mr. Nelson and be represented once more in the senate by an able man who is a member of a party that other states have heard of.

It should be remembered that despite all temptations to do as Minnesota did when it elected a Farmer-Labor representative to the senate, neither North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa nor Wisconsin has been foolish enough to do it. They are all represented there by men who, however independent they may be, are still Republicans. And Minnesota should follow their wise example.

FINDING A USE FOR JAZZ

THE Philadelphia Bulletin comments on finding a use for jazz, using it to pave the way to better music.

"Music is to the soul what air is to the body," said Plato. And nearly everyone remembers what Shakespeare said about him who has not music in his soul. Well, having two such immortals on the side of something coexistent with immortality, the door is wide open to a few thoughts on the subject suggested by Joseph Podolyn, who has charge of music in the Gillespie junior high.

Mr. Podolyn thinks everyone should be taught to appreciate music, and says, "How much better is the aim that creates a land of music lovers and good listeners in leisure hours than that which creates vocal or instrumental performers! Music in the heart of all gives birth to the appreciation of the soulful and the beautiful."

What a good cultivator of music appreciation is the radio! Recently, during a vacation, I spent three evenings tuning in, and the thing that most impressed me was the vast array of really excellent music that was available. Brahms, Chopin, Tschaiikowsky, Schubert, Rossini, Gounod—these and a score of other outstanding composers were to be had at almost any moment. And the renditions of their works were of such quality as to bring out their beauty and their meaning to the soul.

Of course, there was plenty of jazz, and my feeling is that this lighter form of melody serves as a sort of appetizer for the loftier forms. The common experience of those who come into possession of music machines or radios is that jazz paves the way to more substantial and satisfying music. And there is a side to music, in its relation to human beings, which some of us do not often consider.

"Music is referred to as the 'tongue of emotions,'" adds Mr. Podolyn, "and what has made it an indispensable study in these days is its training of will power, its demand for applied concentration, power, and its uplifting and inspirational force in the various walks of life. So let us work for a singing people. Let us hope that, through such a creation, our children may find more concord in the relation of spirit to body and of body to mind. And let us always keep in mind the fact that 'where speech ends, there music begins.'"

CLEAN PLAY, COURTESY, CONDUCT

CLEAN play, courtesy, conduct.

The supervisory committee on athletics in the Philadelphia public high schools thinks so highly of having these attributes in every high school student competing in all fields of sport that it has set itself a practical basis to gain this end. The first step toward reaching this goal is the offering of the Lemuel Whitaker Sportsmanship trophy, in honor of the retired principal of the Southern high school. This cup is to be awarded next September to the school whose students display most of the three above-named qualities in athletic competition for the entire year.

SMITH AND THE WATERWAY

GOVERNOR SMITH said he would put the matter of the inland waterway up to a special commission of engineers and accept their recommendation, when he knew that such a thing has been done three times, and that each time he has refused to accept the decision because the St. Lawrence route was recommended and the All-American route across New York state rejected. Therefore he must be understood as willing to appoint a commission composed only of men who will be pledged beforehand to recommend the All-American route.—Deer River News.

HOW CAMPAIGN LOOKS TO A BUSINESS MAN

American Government Viewed as Business Organization Needs Hoover, Says Straus.

CANDIDATES ARE COMPARED

Head of Nation Must Be Man of Wide Knowledge and Experience Both at Home and Abroad.

By HERBERT N. STRAUS
Prominent New York Merchant.

To a business man, this campaign makes a particular appeal. It is my conviction that the American people must act at election time as if they constituted a great business organization. By this I do not mean that the nation should be without sentiment or without heart, but that the great necessity of today is for the continuance of a growing prosperity, not only for our own good, but that we may maintain our influence in world affairs. We can best visualize the situation if we think of the entire American people as constituting a group of stockholders about to select a new head for a vast enterprise of which we are all a part.

Let us call this organization "The American Company," with 111,000,000 stockholders. Let us suppose it manufactures and distributes many products and has branches in every state of the Union. It looks not only to the markets of this country, but to the markets of every country in the world for the distribution of its output. The products which we manufacture are made to sell at various prices to suit the needs of every pocketbook.

Now what are the specifications that we would require of a chief executive for an organization of this type? What should be his character and background, his education and experience, his personality? You will readily see that race, religion, social grades and sartorial perfection are of no importance, and you will also understand that in the specifications it will be equally unimportant as to how he stands on the 18th Amendment.

People Are Stockholders

We must further suppose that our organization has millions of employees on its payroll, that the next incumbent must be well-informed on the economic problems of every state in the Union and every country in the world, must have his hand on the pulse of relationship between employer and employee and the modern movements along this line,—in short he must be a student of economic and social problems, as well as thoroughly versed in the intricacies of production. It is essential that the president of this company understand the importance of continuous employment, and this can only be achieved by one who is a close student of economics, who can gauge his markets so as to have production keep step with demand.

Let us assume that we who are reading these words constitute a committee of stockholders of which I am chairman. This committee, I believe, would report to this effect:

"Your committee after a very careful survey finds that Mr. Alfred E. Smith is a man of very great ability, but that his experience is so much restricted to New York State that it would be unwise to promote him at this time. His success within the boundaries of his work has been distinct and remarkable. Perhaps at some future time a wider field of activity may be found for him, provided that he devote himself for the next five or six years to travel and study. He should familiarize himself not only with the intricate and delicate nature of our national business, but also learn more about the many problems that confront us throughout the country, which are so dissimilar from the problems that he has been accustomed to handling as head of our New York State branch.

"As to Mr. Herbert Hoover, your committee is pleased to say that it believes this organization is very fortunate in having as a possible head a man who has had his very extraordinary and varied experience. Mr. Hoover has not spent his entire life within the confines of one state, but is familiar with the geography of the whole country and the needs of every state in the Union. He knows all phases of our domestic and foreign business problems. This remarkable knowledge, so essential to the success of our organization, has been acquired by wide reading, study, travel and administrative experience. As a professional engineer of great skill, it was part of his elementary training to learn not only the boundary lines of the states, but the products, activities and the development of the economic life and well-being of all sections.

"In addition to this, he has spent some time abroad and there are few of the 53 countries in which we maintain branch offices and representatives which he has not studied. He has had a leading part in the management of our main offices in Washington for many years, during which he has had the full confidence of our directors and stockholders.

"We therefore recommend and urge the selection of Mr. Hoover as the new head of this organization."

FARM ISSUES AS SHOWN IN HOOVER RECORD

Chicago, Oct. 15.—With their goal lines uncrossed in conference games, four powerful eleven-men — Minnesota, Iowa, Ohio State and Indiana—are swinging along out in front in the race for the 1928 championship of the Big Ten.

Four other teams of the conference, Purdue, Chicago, Northwestern and Michigan, virtually were eliminated by defeat on Saturday. Illinois, one of the strongest of the "Big Ten" teams, and Wisconsin, conqueror of Notre Dame, play their first conference games this week.

The Minnesota Gophers, who battered the Boilermakers of Purdue on Saturday, 15 to 0, now loom as likely champions of the western conference.

Before the Gophers can be placed in front of their "Big Ten" rivals, however, some means must be found of stopping Big Chief Mayes McLain, the Cherokee fullback of Iowa.

One of the most irresistible attacks ever launched on a conference gridiron swept aside the vain resistance of Chicago at the Midway Saturday, the Hawkeyes scoring two touchdowns in their first fourteen plays and then easing up, satisfied with a 13 to 0 victory. It was McLain, over six feet in height and 200 pounds in weight, who smashed the Maroon defense.

Ohio State has little ambitions this year, following a victory over Northwestern, 10 to 0, on Saturday, but the Buckeyes won through alertness rather than sheer power, taking advantage of Purple fumbles.

Indiana, with little hope of placing high in the "Big Ten" race is gloating over Saturday's victory at Ann Arbor, for the Hoosiers not only defeated Michigan, 6 to 0, but scored upon the Wolverines for the first time in 28 years.

Illinois, which swept through Coe, 31 to 0, last week, plays its first conference game next Saturday against Indiana. The Illini nursed high hopes of a "Big Ten" championship this season, seeming to overshadow their rivals before the first kick-off of fall. Now it is apparent that Minnesota and Iowa must be reckoned as extremely dangerous contenders.

The 1928 conference race may be decided on October 27, when Gopher meets Hawkeye. McLain plunges against Nagurski, and the two best "Big Ten" backfields of the year tear up the turf at the Iowa City gridiron.

'BIG TRAIN' SIGNS 3-YEAR CONTRACT TO MANAGE SENATORS

Washington, Oct. 15.—(U.P.)—Walter Johnson signed a three-year contract today to manage the Washington Senators, Clark Griffith, president of the club, announced today. The salary Johnson is to receive was not made public.

"Big Train" comes from Newark, N. J., where it is said he obtained his release from a contract to manage the Newark club of the International league for another year. Griffith reiterated his previous statements that the new manager would be given a free hand in making any changes necessary in the Senators' lineup to produce a championship team.

MINNESOTA SHOWS SUPERIOR ATTACK IN PURDUE GAME

15 TO 0 RESULT NOT AN INDICATION OF GOPHER STRENGTH; STOPPED WELCH

JONES LOOKS TO SEE SPEARS' MEN TRIM CHICAGO AT HOMECOMING NEXT SATURDAY

By PAUL M. JONES

When the whistles blew in the Big Ten last Saturday, eight of the ten teams were playing conference games and they were forced to come out victorious if they were to remain in the race as a contender for the championship. Such were the results. Four were winners and four teams eliminated for the time being at least. Except for the result of the Minnesota-Purdue game the other winners were granted victories before playing so evident were the conditions of the contending teams. All were played under ideal weather conditions so the results were in no way results of lucky breaks.

"Pat" Page's Indiana squad won its first victory in the history of their many struggles at Ann Arbor, over the weak Michigan eleven, 6-0. In the last quarter by their ability to rush the ball and demonstrated that for the time being they must be counted upon as a serious menace for Big Ten honors. Only once in the entire game did the Wolverines threaten the Hoosiers' goal and that was at the start of the game by the aerial attack when they carried the ball to the 28 yard line only to be halted by the fighting Hoosiers and lose the ball on downs.

Coach Ingwersen's Iowa eleven showed that they were striving hard to see that their coach was not dismissed at the close of the season by past poor showings, by defeating Chicago at Chicago, 13-0. McLain, the former Haskell star, led the initial onslaught of his team's drive in the opening period and before the Maroons could find themselves the Hawkeyes had scored two touchdowns and a goal for the extra point. From then on Stagg's Chicago team matched wits with the superior Iowa eleven but it was too late for them to put over the decided punch and score. It will take some good playing to put the Hawkeyes out of the race.

Ohio State, after two miserable seasons when they had been picked as possible champions, started out their Big Ten conflicts by defeating Northwestern on the latter's field by the margin of 10 points, a touchdown, goal and field goal, 19-0. While Northwestern outplayed the Ohioans in ball carrying and the aerial attack, their team work and fumbling were so miserable that these factors practically eliminated them from the race.

Illinois has yet to play a team of much class and for their second game met Coe, a non-conference game, and had no trouble in defeating them, 31-0. Illinois hasn't a very impressive schedule this year, meeting but Indiana in the Big Ten race that has shown any particular strength to date even though she will meet five conference teams. All of them but Indiana and Ohio already have been defeated, and they may develop enough strength to defeat Illinois, but it is doubtful.

Wisconsin took a rest from her hard game with Notre Dame by taking a "breather" in meeting Cornell of Iowa at Madison and easily disposed of them by the score of 49-0. The Badgers are an impressive organization and are going to be real contenders for the conference title and will cause much trouble before being eliminated. Minnesota seems to be their big problem at this date.

After a lapse of 31 years, Minnesota and Purdue renewed relations in football last Saturday at Minneapolis in the only Big Ten struggle of importance and after splitting even in their four previous games the Gophers demonstrated before 30,000 in the Memorial Stadium that they were the superior team by defeating the powerful, well-coached eleven from Indiana by the narrow margin of 15 points. The score in no way shows the superior playing of the Minnesota team over the "Boilermakers." Purdue was about the toughest proposition I have seen a team assigned to defeat after 60 minutes of playing. Well versified in the rushing and aerial attack, for ten minutes at the opening of the game Minnesota looked as though she was going to be swept off her feet by a tornado of forward passes and rushing plays mixed as I have never seen, led by their star, "Pest" Welch. Here was a triple threat man surrounded by ten smart football players that surely brought out all Minnesota had to defeat them. Superiority in fundamental football made it possible for the Gophers to stave off defeat until they could get going and drive back at the Purdue team the very things they had been forced to swallow the opening ten minutes of play. Much credit is due "Doc" Spears for the way he has shaped that Gopher team under all kinds of unfortunate conditions in a week to the fighting, well-organized, well drilled into the common rudiments of football so that even though there were many stars performing for the results obtained, team work and brains made possible the putting down of an eleven that fought as desperately as Purdue to get the scalp of the Gophers and eliminate them from the race. Minnesota had everything and did everything. Regardless of the stars at hand, the team played ball and in face of the tough game but few substitutions were made, showing the wonderful condition the squad was in at this stage of the season. Minnesota lost about three scores from unfortunate circumstances with the ball in the shadows of the goal line, so over-anxious were they in their intensity to score. If Spears now would make the strategy end equal to his fundamental strength, he would have an unbeatable eleven. He still lacks plays for the exact conditions which are necessary for a champion eleven. His teams are the best coached in the Big Ten and have a drive that none can equal, falling down in the past on facts that could have been remedied and saved past defeats.

I want to devote a word to the officiating Saturday. As in the past on several occasions in big games, the officiating by former players of prominence the rules and regulations of the game have been very poor. Referee Magdsohn missed many points that were essential to the game that Purdue was doing consistently that were overlooked. To my notion, the Purdue eleven didn't live up to the modern ethics of good football by their tactics of getting their player. Maybe coaches of their respective teams find it hard to correct these evils through the officials' poor work on the field of play, but I would correct the evils done if I had to get them a rule book to read before the game so they would know their duties better or I would report same to the conference head for blacklisting of the official as incompetent. Games are lost by their ignorance though hired to display intelligence which few have as directors of the games as played.

Minnesota meets the Chicago eleven at Minneapolis next Saturday after a lapse of eleven years, and it is just too bad what is going to happen to that Maroon team when the Gophers get to working upon them after another week to work their new backfield in unison with the rest of the team. I already feel sorry for Stagg and his many players asked to go out in the stadium and stop those eleven men the Gophers will rush at them. I won't predict the score but I will be surprised if it is not of good size.

After this game we travel to Iowa City to meet Iowa and stop them before they become too obnoxious. It will be a tough game and the first trip away for the Gophers this season, but I see no reason why they shouldn't function as well on a foreign field as at home, considering their development by that time, under good playing conditions which is a big factor as the modern game is played.

Then we travel for the second consecutive week to Northwestern for a game, but this game ought to be easier than the Iowa game for to date the Purple eleven has shown but little. These trips away though are dangerous combats, so much can happen.

Then we return to Minneapolis to meet the strong Indiana eleven that spoiled our championship record by a tie game on their grounds last year. All this must be wiped out this year and I look for it to be done in a decisive manner if injuries and the like are kept from the ranks of that great Gopher eleven now shaping as the best Big Ten has gazed upon in many a day.

Then we have a rest from the strain by meeting Haskell from Lawrence, Kansas, to but keep us on edge for the great conflict at Madison the following week. I see no reason why Wisconsin should be beaten before then, so this battle ought to take the place of the great Minnesota-Michigan games, as they do not meet this year, and close the season in a glorious game at Madison November 24. While it may be close and furiously fought, I see no reason with the Gophers' power and future development how the Badgers can stop them. Then we can return home not sharing this time any thoughts of Illinois as a contender but the real champions of the Big Ten for 1928 and another "feather in the hat of Doc Spears," finishing then his fourth year in the conference and two times a winner.

GAME ON "OLD GRADS" DAY TO DRAW LARGE ATTENDANCE

GOPHERS EMERGED FROM PURDUE TILT WITHOUT SERIOUS INJURY

Minneapolis, Oct. 15. — (U.P.) —

Flushed by their 15 to 0 victory over Purdue Saturday, Dr. Clarence Spears' Gophers today began preparations for the homecoming battle against Chicago at Memorial stadium, this week-end.

Although Chicago is not especially dangerous, the game on "Old Grads" day is expected to draw a capacity attendance.

The Gophers emerged from the Purdue tilt without serious injury and several of the players who were crippled against Creighton two weeks ago were expected to be fully recovered for the Chicago mlg. Les Pulkrabek, guard, may be out of the game with a twisted leg received last week in practice.

Coach Spears this week will seek a smoother running attack, better passing and handling of the ball and a trifle more punch on the offense. Perfection along these lines may result in more touchdowns, the lack of which fails to tell the story of the game against Purdue.

A final decision may be rendered this week on the position the crashing Bronko Nagurski of International Falls will occupy during the season. The "Big Nag" came through with the punch that resulted in many of the Minnesota first downs against Purdue and may be kept at fullback as his absence from tackle left little weakness in the line.

A Player with a Punch

By QUIN HALL.
IN one of the outstanding inter-sectional grid battles between the East and West, Syracuse will play Nebraska at Lincoln on Saturday.

Capt. Harold Baysinger, rated by coaches from various sections of the country as one of the best players of last season, will lead his warriors across the corn fields of the Middle West and tackle the Nebraskans right in their own back yard.

In the struggle last year, despite the fact that the team from the East was badly outclassed, the work of Harold Baysinger stood out like a skyscraper in a swamp and at the close of the game some 37,000 rooters—and most of them were Nebraskans—stood up and gave him an ovation which lasted for several minutes. It was the noisiest and most sincere tribute ever paid to a visiting gridironer in the history of the Memorial Stadium. Nebraskans are like that when an enemy is deserving of high praise.

Syracuse lost that game, 21 to 0, but it was through no fault of Baysinger who completed eleven passes, did some good booting and made some open-field runs which amazed the home folks out in Nebraska.

Nebraska always has a powerful team and probably this year is no exception, but the Orange aggregation has hopes of revenge next Saturday and reports from Syracuse indicate that Baysinger—who, by the way, is Ray Barbuti's successor as captain—bids fair to be even a greater player than he was last year.

It will be recalled that Baysinger came into prominence during the Army-Syracuse game at West Point on October 16, 1926. It was during that game that the present captain kicked an Army player and then carried on to the extent of delivering two sharp raps to the back of the referee, Victor A. Schwartz. The affair led to a break in athletic relations between the two schools and shortly afterward Harold shocked the Syracuse campus by resigning from the squad for the remainder of the season.

However, Baysinger returned to football activity last year and distinguished himself by his versatility of attack and the manner in which, as quarterback, he ran the team.

Baysinger's heaves during the Nebraska game last year were an outstanding feature of the Easterner's attack. On one occasion Baysinger tossed one that deceived even his own teammate, Grant Lewis, the end for whom it was intended. The ball traveled sixty-five yards, far into Nebraska territory, but Lewis, not looking for such a long throw, missed it by a few inches.

On another occasion Baysinger, on a fake pass formation, wriggled his way through the Nebraska team for forty yards. It was playing of this caliber which led to the great ovation given him at the close of the game.

Another interesting sidelight on Baysinger is the fact that he is one of the six Ohio boys who are captains of leading football teams. The schools having squads thus ruled are: Syracuse, Michigan, Cornell, Brown, Penn State and Ashland College.

The folks who crowd their way into the Memorial Stadium at Lincoln on Saturday will be expecting to see Baysinger play the same phenomenal grade of football that he exhibited last year and they probably won't be disappointed. In fact it is barely possible that he will lead a victorious team off the field as the long shadows of the goal posts stretch far out toward the east—and Syracuse.

Nebraska has a powerful team and probably this year is no exception, but the Orange aggregation has hopes of revenge next Saturday and reports from Syracuse indicate that Baysinger—who, by the way, is Ray Barbuti's successor as captain—bids fair to be even a greater player than he was last year.

It will be recalled that Baysinger came into prominence during the Army-Syracuse game at West Point on October 16, 1926. It was during that game that the present captain kicked an Army player and then carried on to the extent of delivering two sharp raps to the back of the referee, Victor A. Schwartz. The affair led to a break in athletic relations between the two schools and shortly afterward Harold shocked the Syracuse campus by resigning from the squad for the remainder of the season.

However, Baysinger returned to football activity last year and distinguished himself by his versatility of attack and the manner in which, as quarterback, he ran the team.

Baysinger's heaves during the Nebraska game last year were an outstanding feature of the Easterner's attack. On one occasion Baysinger tossed one that deceived even his own teammate, Grant Lewis, the end for whom it was intended. The ball traveled sixty-five yards, far into Nebraska territory, but Lewis, not looking for such a long throw, missed it by a few inches.

On another occasion Baysinger, on a fake pass formation, wriggled his way through the Nebraska team for forty yards. It was playing of this caliber which led to the great ovation given him at the close of the game.

Another interesting sidelight on Baysinger is the fact that he is one of the six Ohio boys who are captains of leading football teams. The schools having squads thus ruled are: Syracuse, Michigan, Cornell, Brown, Penn State and Ashland College.

The folks who crowd their way into the Memorial Stadium at Lincoln on Saturday will be expecting to see Baysinger play the same phenomenal grade of football that he exhibited last year and they probably won't be disappointed. In fact it is barely possible that he will lead a victorious team off the field as the long shadows of the goal posts stretch far out toward the east—and Syracuse.

AMELIA ON LEISURELY AIR TOUR

Miss Amelia Earhart, transatlantic flier, as she appeared in Chicago, standing beside her little silver and blue Arvo-Avian, which she has piloted from New York to California and back to the Middle West. Speaking of her tiny plane, a gift from Mary Heath, well-known British flier, Miss Earhart asked, "Isn't it feminine looking?"

ing explanations from previously angry Navy officers served to clear the air, and the prospects were for a thoroughly amicable meeting when the aircraft lands at Lakehurst.

The sabbath witnessed an unparalleled jam of traffic here.

One woman died; another missed her husband and became hysterical. Autos literally choked the roads for miles around, and moved out by inches throughout the evening. The crowds were disappointed for they had been led to believe from early Sunday reports that the Zeppelin would arrive during the day.

Through Sunday there were mingled fears for the safety of the dirigible and shouts of exultation as comforting reports were heard of the craft.

At 11:20 P. M. one of several messages was received which described the dirigible's position as 150 miles west of Bermuda. The craft at that time was making a direct course towards the Hatteras, and probably would arrive at Lakehurst around noon.

The Graf Zeppelin, flying off the coast of the United States with the worst of her troubles apparently over, headed today for Lakehurst, N. J., the end of her 5,400-mile flight from Friedrichshafen, Germany.

At 7 A. M. the dirigible was getting position reports from Cape Hatteras and was believed to be steering a course northwest toward Lakehurst and New York. Scanty reports of her position indicated she was approximately 400 miles southwest of New York.

At 3:50 A. M. the Graf Zeppelin notified the Navy department that she had reached latitude 34.20 north and longitude 70.40 west, a position approximately 500 miles southwest of New York and almost due east of Cape Hatteras.

At 6:20 A. M., two and a half hours later, the Naval radio station at Charleston, S. C., reported her position as 250 nautical miles east by north of Cape Hatteras, or about 100 miles closer to New York. The indicated speed between the two positions was 40 miles an hour.

At a speed of 40 miles an hour, the Zeppelin should reach her destination at about 2 P. M. The weather was improved and it was hoped the ship would make better progress, despite the damage to her stabilizer, which was torn by a gust of wind in mid-ocean.

At 7 A. M. the Graf Zeppelin had been in the air more than 100 hours since leaving Friedrichshafen at 1:52 A. M. E. S. T. last Thursday. If she reaches Lakehurst by 2 P. M., her total flying time will have been 108 hours. Computing the straight course as 5,400 miles, her speed would have averaged just 50 miles an hour.

The Graf Zeppelin has a top speed of 80 miles and a cruising speed of 68 miles. But contrary winds and the damage to her stabilizer cut down her progress. The Los Angeles made the same trip four years ago in 81 hours, but her course was more direct and she traversed only 4,010 miles in an airline.

Broadway Love by Thomas Edgefow

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

WHEN Fenimore Wilde, famous Broadway actor, dies, his young and pretty daughter Janet obtains a job with John Montague, theatrical impresario, while her brother Frank, an idler, goes South. Janet makes friends with Leonard Quigg, a temperamental musician, who loves her, and Dr. David Churchill. When Montague insults her Janet becomes Dr. Churchill's secretary. He tells her he is in love with her and wants to divorce his wife, so Janet gives up her position and goes to live with Chester Quigg, Leonard's artist-uncle, and his charming little daughter Alice. She learns how to placate old Mrs. Quigg, Chester's mother, and generally makes life pleasant for the Quiggs. Frank Wilde returns home, broke, and introduces Janet to Cora Niles, his sweetheart. John Montague dies and leaves $200,000 to Janet, and a few days later she meets Wyndham Stonor, English playwright, who becomes interested in her. But Janet is falling in love with Leonard. Stonor makes love to Mrs. David Churchill and invites her to dinner, after which he calls on Janet, at the studio. She is quarreling with Leonard.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.
"HAT type of fool!" Leonard sneered in an aside to Janet that Wyndham Stonor could not hear as he came gaily into the big studio. Janet decided then and there that Leonard should be punished for his absurd jealousy and for his lack of manners. Why could he not see, she argued inwardly, that Wyndham Stonor meant less than nothing in her life? Why must he be so blind?
So she greeted Wyndham charmingly, and Leonard pretended to be engrossed in a sketch that Alice was making of him.

Wyndham, possessed of the sixth sense necessary to a man with his success among women, subconsciously knew what was going on. He disliked Leonard and it gave him an added kick to flirt with Janet. He noticed that the Critic was not cordial in his reception.

"How long are you going to be in the city?" he asked.
"Only until tomorrow afternoon," Janet told him. "I simply have to do some shopping—an uninteresting list for the Co's Cob place."

"Talking about this evening—Leonard interjected.
Instantly, Wyndham made up his mind. He had a dinner engagement with Amy Churchill, but that was not important. It was more important to see that Janet did not dine with this annoying young musician.

"Yes, as to this evening—you will dine with me, won't you?" Wyndham put in quickly. "Please don't refuse. I feel so embarrassed at always receiving your hospitality in the country and never having an opportunity to repay."

"But I have Alice to consider," Janet began, when the telephone rang.

"Is that you, Janet?" came a querulous old voice over the wire.
"Oh, yes, Mrs. Quigg," Janet answered. She covered the mouthpiece with her hand and spoke to Alice.
"It's your grandmother," she informed her. "In one of her worst moods, I think! Are you all right, Mrs. Quigg?" she asked over the telephone.

"All right—fiddlesticks!" the old lady returned spiritedly. "Here I'm left alone with a common servant—alone! I might die for all the family would care, and I'm very ill."

"But I thought your friend, Miss Longan, was there?" Janet replied. "Has she gone?"

"Gone, and good riddance to her!" Mrs. Quigg exclaimed with an outburst of temper. "I ordered the woman from the house when I found that she was a secret drinker."

"Mrs. Quigg! A secret drinker! Come, now!" It was with difficulty that Janet kept the laughter from her voice as she summoned up a mental picture of Miss Longan, a very proper old maid with strong Victorian leanings.

"Yes, my dear! And if you don't come back, I shall telephone for an ambulance and arrive at the studio myself."

Janet thought rapidly. The old woman was perfectly capable of fulfilling her threat.

"What are we going to do?" she asked the others, having requested Mrs. Quigg to hold the line.

"She's got this ambulance complex," Leonard warned. "I suppose someone must go."

"I will go," Alice volunteered. "I don't like you being alone with her, darling," Janet remarked anxiously. She turned to Leonard. "Won't you drive Alice out and stay there, Leonard? I will remain and will come out the first second I can."

"All right," Leonard agreed. He looked enviously at Wyndham Stonor, but already Alice had taken his hand.

"Leonard will motor Alice right out, starting immediately," Janet consoled the old woman over the wire. "Do keep calm until they get there."

So it was arranged, and Alice went off with Leonard, urging Janet not to worry.

"I must do what shopping I can this afternoon," Janet dismissed Wyndham.

"But you will dine with me?" he urged. "Please, Janet!"

She arranged that he should call for her at half-past seven, and then hurried off to a big department store.

Wyndham Stonor returned to his own luxurious quarters. From there he sent a telegram, deciding that he did not want to talk to Amy over the telephone.

"DESOLATED," he wired, "THAT I CANNOT KEEP OUR DINNER ENGAGEMENT STOP DOWN AND OUT WITH AN ATTACK OF NEURALGIA THE PAIN OF WHICH IS AUGMENTED BY MY SENSE OF PERSONAL LOSS FOR TONIGHT STOP SEND ME OF YOUR THOUGHTS WHEN YOU THINK OF ME ALONE THIS EVENING CUT OFF FROM BEAUTY."

He called for Janet in his smartly-appointed limousine. She was tired and not in her gayest mood. Now, she did not want to go out with Wyndham. Her entire thoughts were with Leonard. It was fortunate, then, for Wyndham that that evening he decided to be cynically amusing and not sentimental. Had he chosen the latter mood it is probable that Janet would have left him.

"This is perfectly delightful," Wyndham murmured toward the end of the dinner. Then he laughed.

"Why the amusement?" Janet asked.

"You are far too clever to believe me if I tell you that I never see any other girl, aren't you?" he asked.

"Of course. But one does not have to be clever to know that," Janet replied good humoredly.

"And why," she added, "do you imagine that I would be interested if you saw one girl or a thousand?"

"A pretty thought!" he smiled at her. "The only reason I mention it is that it is in the nature of a bouquet, a charming little tribute laid at your more charming little feet. This evening I was engaged to take one of the most beautiful women in the Island of Manhattan to dinner. I canceled the date because—well, there could never be any choice if it came to you, Janet!"

"I don't like your pose in the least," she answered coldly. "I sincerely hope that the girl you were taking to dinner makes you pay for it. I hope she thinks up some entirely original way in which to chastise you. No, Mr. Stonor! Your bouquet fails to please."

"I wish your eyebrows were not so intriguing when you are in a bad humor," he answered. "They take on a particular curve that ravishes me, so that I shall be tempted to keep you in a bad mood the whole evening."

They were sitting at a table at one of the more celebrated night clubs, when a woman, escorted by two men, entered.

"What one might term a dramatic situation," Wyndham Stonor said in a low voice to Janet. "I wired the lady I was to have taken to dinner that I was prostrated from an attack of neuralgia. She is now entering and at any minute will see me. I call it dramatic!"

And looking up, Janet perceived, advancing determinedly towards her table, Amy Churchill!

This evening I was engaged to take one of the most beautiful women in the Island of Manhattan to dinner. I canceled the date because—well, there could never be any choice if it came to you, Janet!"

"I don't like your pose in the least," she answered coldly. "I sincerely hope that the girl you were taking to dinner makes you pay for it. I hope she thinks up some entirely original way in which to chastise you. No, Mr. Stonor! Your bouquet fails to please."

"I wish your eyebrows were not so intriguing when you are in a bad humor," he answered. "They take on a particular curve that ravishes me, so that I shall be tempted to keep you in a bad mood the whole evening."

They were sitting at a table at one of the more celebrated night clubs, when a woman, escorted by two men, entered.

"What one might term a dramatic situation," Wynndham Stonor said in a low voice to Janet. "I wired the lady I was to have taken to dinner that I was prostrated from an attack of neuralgia. She is now entering and at any minute will see me. I call it dramatic!"

And looking up, Janet perceived, advancing determinedly towards her table, Amy Churchill!

PARK RAPIDS MAN DIES IN CAR UPSET SUNDAY

Blair Cutler, 24, Pinned Under Car Wreckage in Creek Dies From Suffocation

ON HIGHWAY NO. 19

Miss Jean Anderson, Walker, Rescues Self, Suffers Injuries Not Considered Serious

Pinned under the wreckage of a Ford coupe in the muddy bottom of a creek between Gull and Round Lakes early Sunday morning, William Blair Cutler, aged 24 years, of Park Rapids met death from suffocation while Miss Jean Anderson, of Walker received injuries necessitating treatment at the local hospital. Miss Anderson will recover, it was said today.

Death came to Cutler immediately after the car, driven by Miss Anderson, had crashed into the cement bridge on highway No. 19 near the Gull Lake hotel, the old Bishop place. Hurling by the impact into the creek on the left side of the road going north, Cutler was knocked unconscious, it is believed, and was unable to free himself from the creek bottom where he suffocated. Miss Anderson, although badly jarred, was able to save herself by forcing her way to air through the wreckage of the car.

The accident happened as the two were returning to their homes following a dance at Little Pine resort. They had driven to Brainerd with friends from Pine River before starting for home.

The damaged watch owned by Cutler indicates that the accident took place at 2:52 a. m. as the watch had stopped at that time.

Ahead of the death car was another driven by Morris Linden of Pine River, friend of Cutler, whom the latter had visited last week. Clyde Seaton, of Pine River and two girls also from Pine River were occupants of the car with Linden.

Miss Anderson, driver of the Cutler car, had speeded up to overtake the Linden car when the accident happened.

Unaware of the accident, the Linden car had continued on its way for more than a mile when occupants noticed that their friends' car was not following. Linden turned his car around and returned to the scene of the accident rescuing the body from under the car.

The body of Cutler and Miss Anderson were immediately rushed to the hospital at Brainerd where it was first learned definitely that Cutler had died. The body was taken to the Whitney undertaking parlors. Coroner D. E. Whitney drove to the scene of the accident immediately after he was notified. He announced today that no inquest was necessary.

The wrecked car was picked up and brought in to Lively's Garage, Brainerd.

Today the body of Cutler was taken by his father, Dr. Charles Cutler, to Park Rapids where interment will take place.

The death yesterday brings the toll to four of young people killed in accidents returning from Little Pine resort in Cass county. Recently two Brainerd girls and a Staples man were killed when the car they were riding in crashed into a truck on highway No. 2 about five miles from Brainerd.

AULGER BROTHERS OPENING

Stock Company to Present Week of Comedies and Dramas at Park, Opening Tonight

With the finest list of Broadway successes they have ever offered and what they consider the best company they have ever had, the Augler Brothers are making their annual visit to present a week of comedies and dramas at the New Park theatre starting tonight, Monday, Oct. 15.

For their opening play they have selected "The Home Towners," a comedy by George M. Cohan. This play was produced on Broadway by Mr. Cohan himself and it was with out a doubt his greatest success in many years.

The Auglers used a Cohan play for an opening bill three years ago entitled "So This is London," and all those who remember the play will know that George Cohan knows how to write plays that please. Harrison Augler has one of the best character parts he has ever played, in that of P. H. Bancroft, the Home Towners from South Bend in their opening play "The Home Towners." Louise Sherwood is seen to advantage in the lead. Another play that is proving a great success this season is "New Brooms," by Frank Craven, which was produced by John Golden at the Fulton theatre New York City and ran for one solid year; then went to the Blackstone theatre in Chicago for six months. Lewis Ansapacher's great play "Our Children" is one of the outstanding features of the week. Another wonderful play to be presented by the Augler Company is John Golden's greatest success since "Lightnin'," entitled "Pigs."

If you fail to see "Married and How," you are going to miss one of the greatest plays the Auglers have presented in years. "Married and How" is a comedy by Major Ray Hodgdon and is proving to be one of the best stock releases of the season. The Bainbridge Stock Company in Minneapolis used "Married and How" as their second week's offering this season and not only did they do capacity all week but were tempted to hold it over for a second week. For the first time in 21 years the Auglers are repeating a play they have used over their territory. Having had so many requests for "Saintly Hypocrites and Honest Sinners" they have put it in their repertoire this season. The weeks repertoire will close with a play entitled "In Love With Love" a comedy by Vincent Lawrence which was produced by William Harris, Jr., one of the foremost theatrical leaders on Broadway. Due to such artistic and popular successes as "Abraham Lincoln," "East is West," "Outward Bound," etc. Any one of the above plays could be used as a feature bill in the most carefully selected repertoire. We predict a big week for the Augler Company this season.

FARBMAN GIVES WONDERFUL CONCERT

Pure, Clear, Modulated Tones of Violin Are Enjoyed by All

PLAYED ON SATURDAY

Noted Violinist Appeared Under Auspices of Brainerd Musical Club

The beautiful Elks hall, made still more beautiful by baskets of L. P. Hall's dahlias, the "intelligent, discriminating audience" (to quote the artist's description of his hearers) and the pure, clear, wonderfully modulated tones of the violin combined to make a joyous occasion of the Farbmman-Lindstrom concert last Saturday. More than one member of the Musical club had a feeling of regret that lack of members would probably compel this organization to disband at the close of the present season.

In the opening number, the Devil's Trill, by Tartini, the trills were skillfully done without the least blurring. In the second number, two movements of Tschalkowsky's D major Concerto, Miss Delphis Lindstrom had a wonderful opportunity to demonstrate her gift as an accompanist. In the concerto, the piano supplies the missing orchestral instruments and often has just as difficult and intricate passages as the soloist. This was true in the case of this number and Miss Lindstrom improved her opportunity to the limit, thrilling her hearers with her skillful work. In doing this she did not detract, but rather added to the effectiveness of the violin, which carried the theme in clear, bird-like notes to the top-most register that it was possible for even a bird to reach.

In the first number of the last group, the piano emphasized and punctuated the flowing melody of the violin, without a single misplaced emphasis or incorrect musical pause. The waltz of death began with a ghostly introduction, but gradually rose in power to a climax which seemed to fit the words: "I am the master of my fate, I am the captain of my soul." Then came a few bars of closing requiem.

The Spinning Song—the song of happy maidens accompanied by the pleasing hum of their wheels—was a welcome emotional relaxation, as was, also, the following cradle song. The program numbers closed with a delightful Spanish dance, by Sarate. This number opened with a rapid whirl and a flourish of the tambourine. Then, in fancy, one saw the graceful dipping, bending and gliding of a dark-eyed, bespangled Spanish beauty who used her tambourine not only to emphasize musical rhythm, but also grace of movement. The number closed with a gradual increase of tempo until it reached a regular tarantella climax.

The audience, made no move to depart, insisting upon more until Mr. Farbmman responded with a Serenade, by Chaminade. With this number, another delightful musical experience passed into memory.

LEAGUE PRESENTS TWO SPEAKERS

Two to be Given Audience by League of Women Voters at Court House

One Heard in Plea for Smith, One to Plead for Hoover

In accordance with its custom of giving both sides a hearing, the League of Women Voters will present two speakers to the public next Tuesday evening at the farmers' room of the court house. One will be a special pleader for Smith—the other for Hoover. These meetings are arranged for by the state headquarters of the League. But the speakers are chosen by the speakers bureau of each political party. As Minnesota is considered a doubtful state, it is probable that each party will send its best available speaker. Mrs. Albee Ladd has been heard in Brainerd before and, if she is as effective in the cause of Hoover as she was as a League organizer, Secretary Hoover is indeed fortunate in his representative.

On the other hand, the democratic bureau considers this meeting so important that they are sending one of their national speakers—Mrs. Cora Lewis—instead of Miss McAlmon, as was first planned. Mrs. Lewis is making a tour of the northwest, and is therefore available at this time. It is to be hoped that she will have an audience that will justify the expense of bringing her here from Minot, N. D.

The women will not debate in the usual sense of that word, but will each present the issues that are thought to appeal to women. If the men want to know what these are, here's an opportunity to study the psychology of campaigning.

Mrs. Lewis is making a tour of the northwest, and is therefore available at this time. It is to be hoped that she will have an audience that will justify the expense of bringing her here from Minot, N. D.

The women will not debate in the usual sense of that word, but will each present the issues that are thought to appeal to women. If the men want to know what these are, here's an opportunity to study the psychology of campaigning.

MISSIONARY TO PREACH

Missionary Case Who Introduced American Plants Into Assam to Tell of Work There

Missionary Case of Assam, an agricultural missionary of the American Baptist Foreign Missionary society, will be at the First Baptist church to deliver an address, Tuesday evening. The uniqueness of his work makes his message an intensely interesting one.

Missionary Case has done a notable work in introducing many American plants into Assam, and in that country has done something of the same kind of experimental work that Luther Burbank did in America. Besides this however, he is continually carrying on evangelistic work, and is seeking to bring the Assamese to Christ as he endeavors to make them better farmers. All are invited to attend.

NEED OF HELP—CALL 74

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Relief from Gas Stomach Pains Dizziness

The doctors tell us that 90 per cent of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles. You can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are likely to get sick unless you relish food and digest it properly.

Tanlac has a wonderful record as a relief from digestive troubles, even those of years' standing.

Mr. Charles Axelson, of 1809 2nd St. South, Minneapolis, Minn., says: "I was troubled with a disordered stomach and loss of appetite. Tanlac put new life in me. I've put on 11 lbs. and feel as well as I ever did in my life!"

If you suffer from gas, pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation or torpid liver; if you have no appetite, can't sleep and are nervous and all run down, you need Tanlac. It is good, pure medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Money back if it doesn't help you.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Relief from Gas Stomach Pains Dizziness

The doctors tell us that 90 per cent of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles. You can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are likely to get sick unless you relish food and digest it properly.

Tanlac has a wonderful record as a relief from digestive troubles, even those of years' standing.

Mr. Charles Axelson, of 1809 2nd St. South, Minneapolis, Minn., says: "I was troubled with a disordered stomach and loss of appetite. Tanlac put new life in me. I've put on 11 lbs. and feel as well as I ever did in my life!"

If you suffer from gas, pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation or torpid liver; if you have no appetite, can't sleep and are nervous and all run down, you need Tanlac. It is good, pure medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Money back if it doesn't help you.
